Four Steps to Obtain Your Washington Broker License

1. You must successfully complete 90 hours of approved real estate education—within a two-year time frame—before you can take the broker's exam.
2. Register and pass the broker's exam with the exam provider, Applied Measurement Professionals, Inc. (AMP). To schedule your exam, you may visit the AMP website.
3. You'll receive a fingerprint card at the testing center when you take your broker's exam. Go to a fingerprinting service, approved by the Washington State Patrol, and have your fingerprints taken.
4. Complete the Washington State Department of Licensing Real Estate License Application and return it along with your fingerprint card—unless you've sent your fingerprints to the WA DOL in the last 6 years.
